The patch of Rocks is not a cable's length across, and on one large Rock we had only 1\(\frac{1}{2} \) fathoms water; there was a considerable swell over them at the time I was examining the Reef in the boat, but no Breakers. Tree Island is known to be very dangerous, and should never be approached under 6 miles or 13 fathoms water to the South Eastward and Eastward of it." The Commander in Chief has confirmed the Proceedthe commander in Chlot has continued the Proceedings of this Court Martial, although he cannot altogether approve of them. It appears to His Excellency to be clearly established in evidence, that John Fraser's death was caused by some of the blows on the stomach, which he received from Hook, in the course of the sculle between them, and the Court seem to have forgotten, that the Briesans and his time for analysis for analysis for the court seem. that the Prisoner was on his trial for manslaughter, and not for murder. But as, from the nature of the case, it is likely that the Prisoner, if found Guilty, would not have been sentenced to any more severe punishment than a moderate imprisonment, and as he has already suffered confinement for a considerable time since the offence was committed. His Excellency will not direct a revision of the Sentence.

THE following Extract of a Letter from Captain D. Ross, Marine Surveyor General, describing the position of the Rock discovered by Captain Pathick, Commander of the Ship Nerbudda, off Tree Island, is published for general information:

"I have the honor to state for the information of the Marine Board, that when off Sandoway, on the 10th instant, we met with the Ship Nerbudda, and from Captain Patrick I received a Memorandom stating that his Ship had struck on a Rock lying off Tree Island, and that after they had run off to the Eastward and anchored, the following morning, Tree Island bore N. W. b. W. estimated distance 10 miles and Foul Island bore S. b. E. \(\frac{1}{2}\) E. b. I immediately went in search of the Rock, and next day found it to be the extremity of the Dangers, that run off Tree Island to the South Eastward, it bears from the centre of the Island S. 61° R. distant 4\frac{1}{2}\) miles, with 10 and 11 fathoms water close to the Eastward of them. The patch of Rocks is not a cable's length across, and on one large Rock we had only 1\frac{1}{2}\) fathoms water; there was a considerable swell over them at the time I was examining the Reef in the boat, but no Breakers. Tree " I have the honor to state for the information of the Island is known to be very dangerous, and should never be approached under 6 miles or 13 fathoms water to the South Eastward and Eastward of it."
